Procedures for Resolving Cases of Academic Integrity Policy Violations

Allegation of Academic Misconduct:
The faculty suspects alleged misconduct and may choose to meet with the student to discuss the incident and their grade.

The faculty reports to the Office of Academic Integrity and Student Conduct (OAISC).

OAISC notifies the student.

The student has the option of meeting with OAISC’s Peer Advisors, Academic Integrity and Student Conduct Officers, or other available resources before the decision is made.

The student is found not responsible for the allegation(s).

OAISC notifies the student and the faculty of the outcome.

The case is considered closed.

The student is found responsible for the allegation(s) and are assigned sanction(s).

OAISC notifies the student about the decision.

The student submits a written appeal to AIRB in order to appeal suspension or dismissal.

The student attends an in-person hearing scheduled and conducted by AIRB.

The student makes a paper submission to the Academic Integrity Review Board (AIRB) in order to appeal warning, probation, and/or educational sanction(s).

AIRB makes the final decision.

The Dean of Students notifies the student of the outcome.

OAISC notifies the faculty, and the Associate Dean and the Advising Director of the student’s school of major (e.g. School of Humanities) of the outcome.

The student appeals the decision.
